XII. CAMPUS SAFETY

A. Fire Safety. The safety of the Rhodes community is the highest priority. An essential piece of the College's safety practices includes taking fire and fire hazards seriously. A student may violate the Fire Safety policy if they:

- Improperly use fire safety equipment, i.e., discharging a fire extinguisher or activating/engaging a sprinkler system when there is no threat of fire
- Tamper with or cause damage to any firefighting or fire safety equipment

There may be other ways a student can be found violating the Fire Safety policy – violations are not limited to the examples listed above. Rhodes will consider whether the alleged action was intentional or unintentional when considering whether a Fire Safety charge will be issued. However, unintentional actions may still result in a Fire Safety charge, as ignorance is not an excuse to violate College policy. In such instances, consideration would be made regarding the nature and severity of the sanction(s) issued if a student were found responsible for violating the policy.

Falsely reporting a fire or pulling a fire alarm is a violation of the College's Fire Safety policy and the Falsification policy. Students who improperly use or tamper with firefighting or fire safety equipment will, at minimum, be charged a fine and face other sanctions. If such improper use or tampering occurs in a residence hall where the responsible party cannot be identified, the fine may be divided equally among residents on the floor or in the building.
